

Carpentier, European Heavyweight Champion, on Arrival Here, Voices a Desire for a Speedy Bout With Dempsey

CARPENTIER SAYS HE'LL WHIP DEMPSEY

Frenchman Insists He Can Stop American Champion in Six Rounds.

EAGER FOR EARLY BOUT

Cochran Has Carpentier Under Contract and Rickard Probably Has Dempsey.

By CHARLES F. MATHISON.

Georges Carpentier, Europe's ablest and most popular pugilist, whose feats in the ring in time of peace and valor at the front in time of war have endeared him not only to his own countrymen but to patriotic citizens all over the world, arrived here yesterday on the steamship La Saville after a tempestuous voyage of nine days.

The heavyweight champion of Europe was accompanied by his charming bride and two young daughters, who were met at the pier by a large number of admirers. The French pugilist was escorted to his hotel by a large number of admirers.

It is questionable if any athlete ever received a more enthusiastic welcome than that accorded the French pugilist when the steamer swung into her berth at the foot of West Fifth street. A great crowd had gathered in front of the French Line pier and in the adjoining streets, making it necessary for mounted police to keep the roadways open. As soon as the champion, his wife and manager, stepped down the gangplank they were bundled into cars by Tex Rickard and rolled up to the Hotel Biltmore, where they will make their headquarters during their stay in the city.

Two battalions of sporting writers and camera men boarded the steamship at quarantine and bombarded the Frenchman with questions and loaded cameras all the while he was being escorted to his hotel. The famous light brigade faced no more menacing than the battery of cameras that were leveled at him and Mme. Carpentier and Manager Desamps as they stood their ground on the forward deck.

The camera men climbed into the rigging and Carpentier was urged to smile in a dozen different directions at the same time.

But the intrepid never flinched and was bravely at bay when the last camera clicked.

Enter the Interpreter.

When the interviewers began to question the boxer and his manager, the difficulties of the day were encountered. The English language spoken by the visitors appears to be restricted to "Oul, oul," and the French of the writers was not at all fluent. Jack Dempsey, who lives in this city, and who speaks English almost as well as he does his native French.

The first question interpreted related to the Frenchman's chance of defeating Jack Dempsey of the world's heavyweight title.

"In six rounds will I stop M. Dempsey," was the reply. "Dempsey is a fighting fighter, I like him, but the pale blue eyes of the fighter glistened with enthusiasm."

"Yes," echoed Desamps, "Georges will win from Dempsey in six rounds. Georges knows too much for Dempsey and is too quick. It will be easy."

Responding to the question as to how soon he would box Dempsey, Carpentier said:

"The sooner the better, and I do not care where the bout takes place. Anywhere will suit me. I have no objection to boxing in America. Of course, if I win the world's title I will defend it, but if I should lose I will leave my time to attending to my rabbit and chickens."

The champion then asked a question of the interpreter, which was to the effect that the interviewer had asked him to query him about his wedding bliss, and he glanced at his smiling bride.

Being assured that his judgment in the selection of a wife was excellent he resumed the answering of pugilistic questions. He said he weighed 172 pounds as he stood, and that in condition to box he would scale 170 pounds.

These figures correspond with those published by the writer from London when Carpentier defeated Beckett in fifty-three seconds of the first round. The official announcement gave the Frenchman's weight as 169 pounds.

Question of Weight.

Desamps interjected that Carpentier would be compelled to concede nearly twenty-five pounds to Dempsey, as the conqueror of Willard scaled 194 pounds. He was assured that Dempsey weighed 185 pounds the day he defeated Willard, but declared he would weigh $500 that Dempsey weighed 194 pounds.

Desamps next was the target of the interviewers, and he was asked if he was tied up with a contract with any promoter.

"On the day before we sailed for America," he replied, "I signed a contract with C. B. Cochran for the terms of which Carpentier boxes for him up to December 31, 1920. Mr. Cochran is permitted under the agreement to stage the bout anywhere, but I will box in America. I also had an offer from other promoters—Fox, Tootell, Rickard and Glavin—but to each I said, 'Show me Dempsey's contract.' None could do so."

Questioned as to whether Cochran had shown a contract with Dempsey, Desamps replied in the negative. But he intimated that Cochran had told him to come to terms with Dempsey.

"When Tex Rickard heard this he smiled knowingly and said he would have a conference with the Frenchman on that point. It is evident that Rickard has a trump card to play and there is small question that he has Dempsey under contract. Under the circumstances there is apt to be a compromise between Cochran and Rickard."

Carpentier's War Record.

Carpentier was queried as to his aviation experiences and said he had been shot down once in the air. He was on his last lap the Croix de Guerre and the Medaille Militaire.

Georges Carpentier, Mme. Carpentier and Francois Desamps, snapped upon their arrival in America.
